

Order Form for Stopping The Violence and Other Resources (print and mail)

The 448-page manual, Stopping The Violence: A Group Model To Change Men's Abusive Attitudes And Behaviors was published by Haworth Press (New York) in 1999. It contains all the material necessary for anger/ abuse treatment from the time a man initially comes for therapy to the time he completes the treatment group. This process generally takes from 4-6 individual assessment sessions and from 45-60 weekly group sessions depending on the client's level of motivation and willingness to be responsible in writing out and presenting the expected tasks and on the number of members in the group itself at the time. The group model is an ongoing one and fits well into a formal anger/abuse program, an out-patient mental health clinic, or any other therapeutic setting. The treatment model focuses not only on ending the physical violence but also on intervening in the emotional and verbal abuse and the controlling and entitled attitudes that fuel them.

- An Introduction provides an overview of the program.
- Chapter I discusses group leadership issues.
- Chapter II talks about conducting the 4-6 individual assessment sessions and includes all the intake handouts and forms that are helpful in assessing whether a man needs and can benefit from the program.
- Chapter III addresses facilitating the individual member tasks that all men need to write out and present to the group in order to complete the program. It also includes the group member booklet in its entirety, which outlines group goals, rules, expectations, and the twelve tasks expected of members. The tasks include assignments such as specific and practical plans to intervene in his escalation process; a history of violence perpetrated toward partners and others over the course of his life; a discussion about his experiences in his family of origin and childhood and their impact on his controlling, entitled, and abusive attitudes and behaviors, and an amends letter written to his primary victim. A client reading list is included.
- Chapter IV discusses the 12 educational units which are an integral part of each group session. Topics include abuse and its effects, anger, stress management, self-talk, shame and empowerment, culture of origin, assertiveness, communication and conflict resolution, and others. This chapter also includes all the handouts that accompany the educational units.

References for professionals are included.

This manual can be used by beginning as well as experienced practitioners and contains everything necessary for a practical and "hands-on" approach to conducting an effective anger/abuse group. A 306-page Client Workbook is also available for men participating in the program.
